THE LOGANIAN LIBRARY.

This collection of rare and valuable books, principally in the learned and existing languages of the continent of Europe, owes its origin to the Honourable James Logan, the confidential friend and counsellor of William Penn, and, for some time, president of the council of the province of Pennsylvania. Its foundation consists of a portion of his own private library; which, having collected at considerable expense, he was anxious should descend to posterity, and continue usefully to extend to others the means of prosecuting those pursuits he had himself so successfully cultivated. With this view, he erected a suitable building in Sixth street near Walnut, for the reception of a library, and, by deed, vested it (with the books and certain rents, for the purpose of increasing their number, and paying a librarian,) in trustees, for the use of the public, for ever.

This deed he afterwards cancelled, and prepared, but did not live to execute, another, in which some alteration was made in the funds and regulations. After his death, his children* and residuary legatees, with commendable liberality, carried into effect the intentions of Mr. Logan, and conveyed the building, books, and rents charge to trustees, who caused the library, consisting of more than two thousand volumes, to be arranged, and a catalogue to be printed.

* It should therefore be distinctly noted, that it is to the children of James Logan, that the public is indebted for having thus appropriated the books and rents, agreeably to the original design. They were William and James Logan, John Smith and Hannah his wife, she being the surviving daughter.

About one thousand three hundred volumes, collected by Doctor William Logan, of Bristol, England, a younger brother of James Logan; and by William Logan of Philadelphia, son of the founder, were afterwards bequeathed to the institution, by the latter gentleman, who acted for some time as librarian. After his death, in 1776, the library remained unopened during several years.

To insure its perpetuity, the legislature of Pennsylvania, in 1792, at the request of James Logan, the only surviving trustee, passed an act annexing the Loganian library to that belonging to the Library Company of Philadelphia, under certain restrictions; this act constitutes the directors of that prosperous company for the time being, trustees, together with the eldest male descendant of the founder, and two other gentlemen to be by him appointed.*

To assist hereafter in designating the individual entitled to the trusteeship and the appointing power, and to enable the descendants of James Logan, to trace their relationship to him, the trustees have caused to be prepared a brief genealogical table of the family for reference in future; see page xii.

Since the two libraries were thus connected, the books of the Loganian institution have been kept in a room appropriated to the purpose, owned by the Library Company of Philadelphia, in which they were first opened for the benefit of the citizens in 1794, in accordance with the original intentions of James Logan, and the act of Assembly.

Very considerable additions have continued to be made to the collection by means of the funds arising out of the sale of the lot and building in Sixth street, and from the rents of the lands in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, settled originally on the institution by the Logans; and by donations, particularly of that from the late William Mackenzie, Esq., a native of Philadelphia, who bequeathed by his last will, in 1828, "all his books printed before the beginning of the eighteenth century, and eight hundred volumes more, to be chosen by the trustees, from his French books, and Latin books, printed since the beginning of the eighteenth century." This valuable bequest consists of 1519 volumes of great rarity and value, and subsequently 3566 volumes, were purchased from

* The present representative of James Logan in the male line, is Albanus Logan, Esq., residing at Somerville, near Philadelphia. See the provisions of the act regarding a perpetual succession of trustees, "as long as any of his descendants remained." his executors.* They had been accumulated by Mr. Mackenzie, during a life extended beyond seventy years, which had been almost exclusively devoted to literary pursuits; during this period, one of his few intimate friends says, "he believes he never had an enemy, at least, from the purity of his principles, and the correctness of his conduct, I am sure he never deserved one."

* The whole number of volumes received by the Loganian library from Mr. Mackenzie's library, was 5085, and by the Philadelphia library 1966; being a total of 7051 volumes. The books of Mr. Logan's original collection, and those bequeathed by William Logan, are designated in the catalogue by an L.; those bequeathed by Mr. Mackenzie by an M.

AN ACT

For annexing the Loganian Library to the Library belonging to the Library Company of Philadelphia, and for other purposes therein mentioned.

Preamble.

WHEREAS James Logan, formerly of Stenton, in the county of Philadelphia, Esquire, influenced by the patriotic desire of extending the benefits of learning among his fellow citizens, by deed, bearing date the 8th day of March, one thousand seven hundred and forty-five, conveyed to certain trustees, therein named, a lot of ground, situate on the west side of Sixth street, in the city of Philadelphia, between Chestnut and Walnut streets, with the building thereon erected, and a large and valuable collection of books, for the use of the inhabitants of the city of Philadelphia; and for the support of the said institution, by the same deed, he vested in the said trustees certain rents charge therein described, and reserved to himself the right of altering or cancelling the said deed; and afterwards proposing to settle other rents charge, and appoint other trustees for the same purposes, he cancelled the said deed, and partly prepared another, which he did not live to complete; and by his last will and testament, bearing date the twenty-fifth day of November, one thousand seven hundred and forty-nine, the said James Logan reserved from his residuary estate, and devised the two rents charge thereafter mentioned, declaring them to be intended for the use of the said institution; and since his death, William Logan and James Logan, sons of James Logan aforesaid, John Smith and Hannah his wife, the said Hannah Smith being the surviving daughter of James Logan, the elder, and the said William Logan, James Logan and John Smith, being the surviving executors of his last will and testament, induced by the same laudable motives, and desirous of carrying the intention of their father into effect, by deed, bearing date the twenty-eighth day of August, in the year one thousand seven hundred and fifty-four, between the said parties, on the one part, and Israel Pemberton, junior, William Allen, Richard Peters, and Benjamin Franklin, of the other part, conveyed to, and vested in, the said Israel Pemberton, junior, William Allen, Richard Peters, and Benjamin Franklin, their heirs and assigns, to the use of the said William Logan, James Logan, John Smith, Israel Pemberton, junior, William Allen, Richard Peters, and Benjamin Franklin, their heirs and assigns for ever, in trust for the purposes hereafter mentioned, the messuage and lot of ground before mentioned, situate on the west side of Sixth street, between Chestnut and Walnut streets, in the city of Philadelphia, in the said deed particularly described, with all and singular the books therein deposited, according to the catalogue thereof, the uses and trusts of which settlement were in substance as follow: that is to say, "That there should be a perpetual succession of trustees, part of whom should be of the descendants of the said James Logan, the elder, preferring the male line to the female, as long as any of his descendants remained; that one of his male descendants, taken in priority of birth, and preferring the male line to the female line, should be Librarian of the said public library, with a power of employing deputies; that the library should be opened for the public use of the citizens, and that books might be borrowed thereout, under certain restrictions;" and for supporting the expense of the institution, and enlarging the collection by the purchase of other books, from time to time, the said parties of the first part, by the same deed conveyed to the said parties of the second part, to the use aforesaid, on the trusts aforesaid, the said rents charge, devised in the said last will and testament of the said James Logan, the elder, to wit, a certain rent charge of twenty-one pounds sterling per annum,* with clauses of increase, at stated periods, according to the valuation of disinterested men, issuing out of a certain tract of land, situate in Solebury township, Bucks county, containing three hundred and ninety-six acres and three quarters of an acre, which by deed, dated the first day of May, in the year one thousand seven hundred and fifty, was granted by the same James Logan, the elder, to Jonathan Ingham, in fee simple, and also a certain rent charge of ten pounds sterling per annum, with the like clauses of increase, issuing out of a certain other tract of land in the same township and county, containing two hundred acres, which by deed, dated the twenty-sixth day of May, in the year one thousand seven hundred and fifty, was granted by the said James Logan, the elder, to Jacob Dean, in fee simple: And whereas the said library was thereupon opened for public use, according to the provisions in the said settlement contained; but since the death of the said William Logan, who was the first Librarian, the avocations of the other trustees, the situation of public affairs, and other causes, have suspended the provisions of this liberal institution, although the books are found, upon examination, to be in good condition: and whereas an addition has been made to the said collection, for the same purposes, of near one thousand volumes, by the will of the said William Logan, and the whole now consists of about three thousand five hundred volumes: And whereas James Logan, the only surviving trustee of the said institution, hath requested the Legislature, that, pursuant to an agreement made between him and the Directors of the Library Company of Philadelphia, the said messuage, lot of ground, two rents charge, and the books and other things in the said messuage contained, may be vested in the Library Company of Philadelphia, and that power may be given to make such provisions as may tend most effectually to render the said institution beneficial to the public, consistently with the design of the founder; and it appears to the Legislature proper to aid him therein:

RULES

REGULATING THE MANNER OF

OPENING AND CONDUCTING THE LOGANIAN LIBRARY.

I. The Library shall be open daily (Sundays excepted) at the same hours as those of the Library Company of Philadelphia.

II. The Librarian shall deliver books to such persons as shall come to the Library in order to read them, and receive them again, previous to shutting up the room, first examining whether they are damaged. At the time of delivering a book to the person desirous of reading at the Library, he shall require his name, and enter it in a book to be kept for that purpose, together with the name of the book so delivered to him, which entry shall be cancelled when the book is returned. No person shall be permitted to take a book out of the room, before he has signed a promissory note to return the same, undefaced, within the time limited, viz. five weeks for a Folio, three weeks for a Quarto, and two weeks for those of smaller size, and shall, also, deposit double the value of the book with the Librarian until the same is returned. The borrower may, on producing the book to the Librarian, renew his note for the like time.

III. Any person keeping a book beyond the limited time shall pay to the Librarian, for the use of the institution, twenty-five cents, per week for a Folio, eighteen cents and three-quarters per week for a Quarto, and twelve cents and a half per week for any book of smaller size, to be deducted out of his deposit; and if the book shall be kept out so long, as that the fines shall amount to more than the sum deposited, then the signer of the note, shall be liable to the payment of the surplus; which terms shall be expressed in the form of the note.

IV. Any person injuring a book, and refusing to make compensation for it, or otherwise infringing the rules, shall be excluded from future access to the books, until the next meeting of the trustees, when it shall be the duty of the Librarian to report, and of the trustees to take order, thereon.

V. All persons residing out of the city of Philadelphia who wish to take any book out of the Library, must first obtain permission in writing, from at least one of the trustees; if they reside more than seven miles from the city, they may retain a book double the time allowed an inhabitant within the city, without incurring a fine.

VI. The trustees shall, from time to time, determine what books shall not be permitted to be taken out of the Library.

By-law of the Loganian Library adopted February 14, 1833.—The members of the Library Company of Philadelphia shall be permitted to take out books from the Loganian Library upon signing a promissory note to return the same undefaced within the time limited by the existing by-law, and upon pledging at the same time their respective shares in the Company as security for such return

Supplement 1

PREFACE.

A General Catalogue of the books belonging to the Loganian Library was printed in the year 1837. The present Supplement contains the titles of such books as have been added since that time. The number of volumes catalogued in this Supplement is 708. Among them are some of great value and rarity, such as Franklin's Pennsylvania Gazette, from 1728 to 1760; Bradford's Mercury, 1727 to 1742; The New York Gazette, 1746 to 1758; Lenoir's Antiquités Mexicaines, 3 vols., folio; Il Vaticano, 8 vols., folio; Lepsius' Egypt, 12 vols., folio; Botta's Nineveh, 4 vols., folio; Dugdale's Monasticon, 8 vols., folio; De Bry's America; Lincy's Hôtel de Ville de Paris; such of the English County Histories as were wanting to complete the collection of the Philadelphia Library; the eighth edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica, 21 vols., quarto; Facciolati's Lexicon; Pugin's Gothic Architecture; a number of German works on America, including some on Pennsylvania; Rogers' Geology of Pennsylvania; The Revue Archéologique complete; Bossuet's Works, 20 vols., quarto; The United States Statutes at Large; The Oxford edition of the Fathers; Statham's Abridgment (printed by R. Pynson); Du Cange's Glossarium; Elliot's Tetraonidæ; Hakluyt's Voyages; Holbrook's Herpetology; Jones' Grammar of Ornament; Gillray's Caricatures; Henry's MS. Indian Dictionary; and Visconti's Works. It will be seen by the titles of these and of the other works now catalogued, that the Trustees have endeavored, with the limited means at their disposal, to add such books to the Loganian collection as were of a solid character, and in accordance with the learned tastes of the Founder. They are indebted to the late Albanus C. Logan for several valuable gifts, and also to the following persons, whose names are here arranged in alphabetical order, their donations being specified in the body of this supplement:—

The titles in this supplement are arranged alphabetically by author's names, with cross references from the important words; so that it possesses nearly, though not quite, all the advantages which belong to a classified catalogue with a copious alphabetical index. In any future general Catalogue it is not proposed to depart from the well-considered system adopted in the existing classified catalogues of the Philadelphia and Loganian Libraries; but this Supplement being short, an alphabetical arrangement, with copious cross references, was thought to be sufficient.

The Trustees have considered it best, in view of the perpetual character of the Trust, that the Deed which constitutes the foundation of the Loganian Library, and which has never before been printed, should be included in this volume; together with the Act of Assembly transferring the Trust, and vesting the property in the Library Company of Philadelphia: and also an abstract from the record of the Founder's descendants, kept in a folio book, in accordance with the Deed of Trust.

It may be mentioned that the intention of the Founder in regard to his Bucks County lands has been carried out by the existing Trustees, the lease which expired in 1861 having been renewed for the term of one hundred and twenty-one years at an increased rent.

Since the Catalogue of 1837 was issued, a biography of James Logan, by Wilson Armistead, has been published in England, so that it is unnecessary to furnish here the details of his well-spent life. But the following deserved tribute to the character of the Founder is less accessible, and it will not be thought out of place. The passage occurs in John Davis' "Personal Adventures and Travels . . . in the United States of America," published at London, in 1803. The author came to Philadelphia in 1798. "My first visit," he says, "was to the Library. A bust of Dr. Franklin stands over the door. . . . . Of the two rooms, the Franklinian library is confined to books in the English language, but the Loganian library comprehends every classical work in the ancient and modern languages. I contemplated with reverence the portrait of James Logan, which graces the room. I could not repress my exclamations. As I am only a stranger, said I, in this country, I affect no enthusiasm on beholding the statues of her generals and statesmen. I have left a church filled with them on the shore of Albion that have a prior claim on such feeling. But I here behold the portrait of a man whom I consider so great a benefactor to literature, that he is scarcely less illustrious than its munificent patrons of Italy; his soul has certainly been admitted to the company of the congenial spirits of a Cosmo, and Lorenzo of Medicis. The Greek and Roman authors, forgotten on their native banks of the Ilyssus and Tiber, delight, by the kindness of a Logan, the votaries to learning on those of the Delaware."

EXTRACT FROM THE WILL OF JAMES LOGAN,

DATED AT PHILADELPHIA, IN 1749.

In my library, which I have left to the city of Philadelphia, for the facilitating and advancement of classical learning, are above one hundred volumes of authors, in folio, all in Greek, with mostly their versions; all the Roman classics, without exception; all the old Greek mathematicians, viz., Archimedes, Euclid, and Ptolemy, both his geography and almagest, which I had in Greek (with Theon's commentary in folio, above 700 pages) from my learned friend, Fabricius, who published fourteen volumes of his Greek Bibliotheque in 4to., in which, after he had finished his account of Ptolemy, on my inquiring of him at Hamburgh, in 1722, how I should find it, having long sought for it in vain in England, he sent it to me out of his own library, telling me it was scarce, that neither prayers nor price could purchase it. Besides, there are many of the most valuable Latin authors, and a great number of modern mathematicians, with all the three editions of Newton, Dr. Halley, Wallis, &c.

I have built a library-room, and endowed it for ever with £35 sterling per annum for a librarian; he to advance £18 yearly to buy books.

The room, books, and salary, I cannot value at less than £2000, solely designed for the use of the public, in order to prevail on them (having such assistance) to acquaint themselves with literature.

JAMES LOGAN.

And the said testator, in another clause of his said will wherein he devises to his son James, party hereto, certain lots on the Sixth Street of Philadelphia, expresses himself thus: "Excepting out of the present grant thirty-five or forty feet at the most for my library now built thereon on the Sixth Street aforesaid, and four score feet in length on the same street." And the said testator in another part of his said will, after sundry devises to his granddaughters, Mary Norris and Sarah Norris, daughters of Isaac Norris and of Sarah his late wife, the deceased daughter of the said testator, one part of which was one thousand pounds to each, concludes those devises to them with these words, "is the full of their mother's portion, but in case of either of the said children's death before they attain to the age of twenty-one years, my executors are to save that thousand pounds ordered herein before to be paid to her, and to lay out one-half of it on a purchase of some sure rents to be paid yearly by the tenants to my librarian, one-half for his own use, and the other half to purchase more books to the library."

AND the said testator, in another part of his said will, expresses himself thus: "REQUESTING Richard Peters, who has been kind in bestowing some books on my library, which therefore bear his name inscribed with my own, to assist in placing my books in the said library built in town, according to their classes as they stand in the catalogue, but not exactly in the same order, because of some difference in their sizes, though of the same denomination as folios, quartos, octavos." AND the said testator, in a codicil to his said last will, bearing date the eighteenth day of January, or the eleventh month, one thousand seven hundred and forty-nine (fifty), and duly executed by him and proved since his death, expresses himself thus: "I give to the trustees of my library, in the city of Philadelphia, my terrestrial and celestial globes, together with my library as contained in the Catalogue of it." As by the said last will and codicil and proofs thereof recorded in the register-general's office at Philadelphia, in lib. i, page 510, may appear: AND WHEREAS the house for the said library was built and finished in the said testator's life, at his own expense, and by his direction and order, and since his death the shelves are put up, and the books placed and ranged thereon.*

Recital. Deed of Founder Dated Mar'h 8, 1745.

AND WHEREAS by an instrument on two skins of parchment bearing date the eighth day of March one thousand seven hundred and forty-five, the said testator made, signed, and sealed a settlement for the use of his library, by which instrument he gave sundry ground rents, in the city of Philadelphia, yearly payable for the support and maintenance of the said library, the paying a yearly salary to a librarian, and for the increase of the books thereof, and keeping the house wherein the said library was to be placed continually clean and in repair, AND by which instrument the said testator in an ample manner expressed and declared the trusts upon which he granted the said library and appurtenances, and prescribed rules concerning the same, but thinking fit afterwards to change the fund therein appointed for the maintenance of his said library, and to appoint in place thereof that fund which arises out of the said five hundred and ninety-six acres mentioned and excepted as aforesaid in his said will, and intending to change the trustees mentioned in the said instrument, he, the said testator, cancelled the said instrument by cutting off from the same his subscription and seal, and the subscriptions and seals of the trustees therein mentioned, as by

* This house stood at the N. W. corner of Sixth and Walnut. The only existing representation of it is a picture, drawn from memory, by the late Charles A. Poulson, Esq., and by him bequeathed to the Library. It hangs in the Loganian Library Room. The lot and the library building thereon were sold to John Swanwick in June 1792, for £700. the said instrument so cancelled may appear. And although the cancelling of a conveyance does not generally make it void, yet as that conveyance was not founded on the Statute of Uses, and therefore wanted livery of seizin of the ground and attornment for the rents to make them pass out of the testator, and it never was perfected by those ceremonies, the cancelling was a sufficient indication that he, the said testator, never intended to perfect it by them and till then he remained vested with those estates thereby intended to be granted. AND by the last clause of the said instrument, the estates thereby granted were under such further trusts and confidence, and subject to such alterations as the said testator, by any future writing to be signed and sealed in presence of two or more credible witnesses, should at any time thereafter think fit to declare, and the said testator, by his last will and testament, did otherwise dispose of the rents therein mentioned, and appointed other rents more valuable, certain, and growing, by these presents granted or intended to be granted in the place thereof.

Clause of revocation.

AND WHEREAS, by the testator's said last will, it appears that he was then about making another settlement of his said library with the fund mentioned in his said last will, in the place of the former settlement so cancelled by him as aforesaid, in the draught of which new settlement he had gone a considerable length, but while he was so preparing the said draught he was seized with a paraletick disorder, so that he did not compleat the said draught, nor execute a new settlement agreeable thereto, which draught, so far as the said testator had prepared and wrote it, recites that he had collected a considerable number of Greek, Latin, and English books with some-in the Oriental, French, and Italian languages, mostly for his own use, through a laudable desire of promoting useful knowledge, had caused a room to be built for their reception on a certain square of lots between Chestnut Street and Walnut Street and between the Sixth and Seventh Streets from the River Delaware in the said city of Philadelphia, a part of which square he had appropriated for the use of the said library, and intended for the use of the publick according to certain instructions directed to his librarian, and that it would be necessary that some person fitly qualified be from time to time appointed as a librarian, with such a yearly salary as in some measure may compensate his care and service in attending thereon, and for the other uses and purposes therein after specified; also reciting that the said testator was seized in fee of the said five hundred and ninety-six acres and three-quarters of land above described, and had granted the same to the said Jonathan Ingham and Jacob Deane under the several rents, conditions, and exceptions, and by the several deeds or indentures hereinbefore recited; AND after the said recitals, by the said draught, it appears that the said testator, as well in consideration of the premises as of the sum of ten shillings by the said William Logan, James Logan, John Smith, Israel Pemberton, William Allen, Richard Peters, and Benjamin Franklin to him paid, did intend to grant, bargain, sell, release, and confirm unto the said William Logan, James Logan, John Smith, Israel Pemberton, William Allen, Richard Peters, and Benjamin Franklin, and to their heirs and assigns forever, ALL THAT the said piece of ground, situate in said city of Philadelphia, in the square of lots between Chestnut cation by the donor, then and in that case the said intention of the testator shall also be the rule; so also in case of the forfeiture of deposits, or of the securities given for books which are prescribed to be double the value of the book, the superplus, after the librarian's repurchase and replacing of the books, and his charges in the recovery of the money, shall be applied by the rule aforesaid:

AN ACT

For annexing the Loganian Library to the Library belonging to the Library Company of Philadelphia, and for other purposes therein mentioned.

WHEREAS James Logan, formerly of Stenton, in the county of Philadelphia, Esquire, influenced by the patriotic desire of extending the benefits of learning among his fellow citizens, by deed, bearing date the eighth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and forty-five, conveyed to certain trustees, therein named, a lot of ground, situate on the west side of Sixth Street, in the city of Philadelphia, between Chestnut and Walnut Streets, with the building thereon erected, and a large and valuable collection of books, for the use of the inhabitants of the city of Philadelphia; and for the support of the said institution, by the same deed, he vested in the said trustees certain rents charge therein described, and reserved to himself the right of altering or cancelling the said deed; and afterwards proposing to settle other rents charge, and appoint other trustees for the same purposes, he cancelled the said deed, and partly prepared another, which he did not live to complete; and by his last will and testament, bearing date the twenty-fifth day of November, one thousand seven hundred and forty-nine, the said James Logan reserved from his residuary estate, and devised the two rents charge thereafter mentioned, declaring them to be intended for the use of the said institution; and since his death, William Logan and James Logan, sons of James Logan aforesaid, John Smith and Hannah his wife, the said Hannah Smith being the surviving daughter of James Logan, the elder, and the said William Logan, James Logan, and John Smith, being the surviving executors of his last will and testament, induced by the same laudable motives, and desirous of carrying the intention of their father into effect, by deed, bearing date the twenty-eighth day of August, in the year one thousand seven hundred and fifty-four, between the said parties, on the one part, and Israel Pemberton, junior, William Allen, Richard Peters, and Benjamin Franklin, of the other part, conveyed to, and vested in, the said Israel Pemberton, junior, William Allen, Richard Peters, and Benjamin Franklin, their heirs and assigns, to the use of the said William Logan, James Logan, John Smith, Israel Pemberton, junior, William Allen, Richard Peters, and Benjamin Franklin, their heirs and assigns for ever, in trust for the purposes hereafter mentioned, the messuage and lot of ground before mentioned, situate on the west side of Sixth Street, between Chestnut and Walnut Streets, in the city of Philadelphia, in the said deed particularly described, with all and singular the books therein deposited, according to the catalogue thereof, the uses and trusts of which settlement were in substance as follows: that is to say, "That there should be a perpetual succession of trustees, part of whom should be of the descendants of the said James Logan, the elder, preferring the male line to the female, as long as any Preamble. of his descendants remained; that one of his male descendants, taken in priority of birth, and preferring the male line to the female line, should be Librarian of the said public library, with a power of employing deputies; that the library should be opened for the public use of the citizens, and that books might be borrowed thereout, under certain restrictions;" and for supporting the expense of the institution, and enlarging the collection by the purchase of other books, from time to time, the said parties of the first part, by the same deed conveyed to the said parties of the second part, to the use aforesaid, on the trusts aforesaid, the said rents charge, devised in the said last will and testament of the said James Logan, the elder, to wit, a certain rent charge of twenty-one pounds sterling per annum, with clauses of increase, at stated periods, according to the valuation of disinterested men, issuing out of a certain tract of land, situate in Solebury township, Bucks County, containing three hundred and ninety-six acres and three-quarters of an acre, which, by deed, dated the first day of May, in the year one thousand seven hundred and fifty, was granted by the same James Logan, the elder, to Jonathan Ingham, in fee simple, and also a certain rent charge of ten pounds sterling per annum, with the like clauses of increase, issuing out of a certain other tract of land in the same township and county, containing two hundred acres, which, by deed, dated the twenty-sixth day of May, in the year one thousand seven hundred and fifty, was granted by the said James Logan, the elder, to Jacob Deane, in fee simple: And whereas the said library was thereupon opened for public use, according to the provisions in the said settlement contained; but since the death of the said William Logan, who was the first Librarian, the avocations of the other trustees, the situation of public affairs, and other causes, have suspended the provisions of this liberal institution, although the books are found, upon examination, to be in a good condition; and whereas an addition has been made to the said collection, for the same purposes, of near one thousand volumes, by the will of the said William Logan, and the whole now consists of about three thousand five hundred volumes: And whereas James Logan, the only surviving trustee of the said institution, hath requested the Legislature, that, pursuant to an agreement made between him and the Directors of the Library Company of Philadelphia, the said messuage, lot of ground, two rents charge, and the books and other things in the said messuage contained, may be vested in the Library Company of Philadelphia, and that power may be given to make such provisions as may tend most effectually to render the said institution beneficial to the public, consistently with the design of the founder; and it appears to the Legislature proper to aid him therein:
